What I love best about it is: 1) it identifies areas in London that have antiques areas that I didn't know about and 2) it has web sites and URLs of dealers that aren't easy to find with an internet search engine. I'm no stranger to London having grown up there and a regular visitor, but this book covers the antiques world in greater depth than I knew existed; and when I can't be in London, I'm a constant internet shopper and having all these website addresses is wonderful! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. London Antiques Guide By Bruce We spent two days visiting antique stores while in London recently and this guide was very useful in finding stores and districts that we wanted to see. It is written by a knowledgeable person. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By di3697 Love it!

As a dealer and professional tour guide, Kimberly Jayne Gray is an ideal escort around London - one of the world's richest sources of antiques. Finding dealers and other outlets with consistently interesting and high-quality items in this thriving city can be a challenge. This refreshingly accessible, wonderfully functional and superbly illustrated guide pinpoints the very essence of antiques-hunting: knowing where to go for those great buys. The London Antiques Guide offers an insider's perspective on London's best dealers and shops, with over 350 of London's essential antiques sources, and many of its best-kept secrets. The book is divided into seven sections, designed to help the reader survey London's antiques quarters by area and style. They contain information on all types of outlet - from shops and auction houses to fairs and markets. An extensive list of websites is woven into the text, and a full glossary of general trade terms and phrases appears at the end of the book, along with a quick price guide, two timelines and various tips and tricks of the trade.

About the Author Kimberly Jayne Gray deals in antiques in the USA and online. She spent three years working for Michael Lipitch, who is one of London's foremost dealers in 18th-century furniture and works of art.
