Days Out From London offers hundreds of ideas for visitors looking for a respite from the “Big Smoke,” all close enough that one can get there and back in a day. Packed with ideas and inspiration, the guide covers arts, culture, nature, adventure, and everything in between. Included are stately homes and ruined castles, unusual museums and quirky shops, secluded beaches and tranquil woodlands, perfect pubs and destination restaurants, as well as canal boats, steam trains, theme parks, festivals, seasonal highlights for nature lovers, and a wide range of family-friendly activities. Each destination includes a detailed map along with journey time, transportation options, admission prices, and opening times. Indexes arranged by county and journey time make choosing what to do and where to go a breeze. Accommodation suggestions are included for travelers who may want to make a night of it.

About the Author Emma Howarth has edited numerous guides for Time Out, the most recent being Parties, an in-depth guide to throwing a party in the capital.
