Judy Falck-Madsen : To Denmark, with Love before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised To Denmark, with Love:

"Hygge," the word currently circulating from Denmark, the country that has topped the World Happiness Report three times since in 2012, is one description of To Denmark With Love, written by an American who married a Viking. This is also why that other word "scand-wagon" has become a worldwide invitation for enjoyment, friendship and discovery. So, what would you do with a dead badger on your doorstep? If you're Judy Falck-Madsen, consternation gives way to laughter, and recollection produces one of many wonderfully humorous anecdotes about town and country living in Denmark. Welcome to the day-to-day joys and tribulations of family life in the land of Hans Christian Andersen. The story lines are furnished by friendly Danes, mischievous children, an assortment of animals, both wild and domestic, and one genuine Viking - the author's husband, Finn. It's a life that's built on a deep respect for nature, tradition, and just plain fun. Denmark provides the setting, but the wisdom gained is universal.

About the Author Judy Falck-Madsen was born in the Hawaiian Islands in 1938. Adventurous parents gave her a nomadic youth in the islands, California, and Las Vegas - in the days before tourism- which she developed into the American saga told in Life Line, published in 2005. She is a graduate of the University of California at Santa Barbara. The author currently lives in Denmark.
